

Figure 5: Attrition-scrubbing cells (Courtesy Metso Minerals)

The desliming stage is considered critical, as a virtually slime-free product is necessary to feed the potash flotation stage, in order to minimize reagent costs and to ensure good potash recovery.